

FIRST YAWN OF LIFE

Remarkable Photograph of a One-Month-Old Baby

TAKEN BY HIS PROUD FATHER

Believed to be the First and Only Photograph of its Kind on Earth—Woman Born.

I now present the most remarkable photograph ever made of a human being. It was a photograph of the youngest person that ever had a picture taken. The subject is Clara May Kivian of Laramie, who was born May 26, and seven minutes after her birth has photographs were taken. The happy father was the photographer. Mr. Kivian is the proprietor of a gallery and his family live on the same floor.

As soon as the hit of brand new humanity could be wrapped in a shawl and placed in a little basket the doctor, acting upon a thought which came to him suddenly, called to Mr. Kivian, who had just stepped into an adjoining room:

"Come, John, hurry up. I've got an idea. This is a picture that is beyond a doubt the first picture of being born. In fact, the idea comes to me that Dr. Kivian would want to argue that the English are becoming dexterous in the new power in extracting the individual essence or spirit." The same thing is happening in Germany, in France, in Switzerland and elsewhere on the continent.

Reviews of the Arctic Fair.

We usually talk about the weather when there isn't anything else to talk about. This fact may tend to rob the subject of its importance; yet it should not. In fact it ought to be greatly in its favor, as it is even ready and efficient in breaking the "arctic power." Have you ever been troubled by the arctic power? Perhaps, indeed, if you have not, and entitled to honest sympathy if you have. It is truly awful, especially if you are a woman, that you should break it. It settles upon the head regardless of sex, like a lightning bolt, and seems to penetrate the soul, and cut through to the heart. No one can think of anything to do, or dare to attempt to say it. Then, if ever, a fool is welcome, and he doesn't think before he speaks—Pittsburgh Commercial.

Cranks at the Fair.

The fair has developed some curious cranks. One of the more conspicuous is the gentleman who wants to write his name in every register he comes across. He is general manager of his own state, and manager for the local building association as he arrives on the grounds. Once there he first locates the register, and with a mighty sweep of the arm writes. They run away by the thousands, and Dr. Kivian went so far as to argue that the English are becoming dexterous in the new power in extracting the individual essence or spirit." The same thing is happening in Germany, in France, in Switzerland and elsewhere on the continent.

It is said that one of the reasons for the strength which John Burns, the labor leader and socialist of London, has in his devotion to his wife. He always insists on her presence when he has to make a speech anywhere, and is said to be extremely popular without her. It is hard to call out: "Who is my wife?" His answer: "Here, John," and the speech goes on.

Mrs. Lucy of Arctic Fair is a tall, willowy woman, whose personality is very attractive. Her youthful appearance is a surprise to many, and seems to prove that she is young and not thought to fight. No one can think of anything to do, or dare to attempt to say it. Then, if ever, a fool is welcome, and he doesn't think before he speaks—Pittsburgh Commercial.

Electric power women machinists for the details of his electrical inventions. He says they have more fine sense about machinery in one minute than most men have in their whole lifetime. He proves the sincerity of his statement by placing 200 women on his pay-roll.

Trusts and combinations are unpopular. But there is one form of trust against which no one says anything. That is the trust the public places in Hood's Sunparilla. Hood's Cures.

About Women.

A series of lectures on "Historic War-ies" will be given at the next state building, finds the register there and signs his name again.

All told there must be several hundred registers in use, for not only are they to be found in state buildings, but also in exhibits. One man entered the Minnesota building the other day, and as he signed his name, exclaimed: "I should be in every house."

At this Mr. Kivian returned, when the doctor said:

"Now, if you want to break the record in taking young children get out your camera. I'll hold the baby and you can snap her."

No sooner said than the father rushed across the hallway and soon returned with his apparatus. Again he rushed out and this time returned with a cloud background, saying:

"We'll use this; it will look as if she just dropped from them."

The result of these hurried preparations is an excellent portrait of the child when only between seven and eight minutes old—or young. This picture shows little Clara taking the first yawn of her life. —Boston Globe.

Mandy's Toilet.

Mandy now has her bath-room fitted in white, although she cannot conveniently indulge in expensive French fitting. She buys the French paper instead and it is a most attractive decoration. This paper is of very fine texture, with an exquisite ornament, and is $1.50 per roll. Like all French papers, the rolls include several more yards than those of domestic manufacture.

In these baths rooms the wainscoting is of white enameled wood and extends half way up the wall. The remainder is finished with the tile paper. The ceiling is finished with the enameled paper. The ceiling paper may be of the sort that shows a cracked glaze, such as Oriental porcelains.

The window is finished with white glass set in a leaded pattern.

The chair is enameled in white, both frame and cane seat. The rods of the towel rack are also done in white enamel. Such a bath-room is easily kept clean, being of a polished surface. If desired, it is good taste to varnish the paper.

Bonnets and Blouses.

The bonnet type is becoming more numerous in England and on the continent. This is and now for the blouse. Mr. Gladstone, who observes new things, said some years ago that light-haired people are more numerous than dark. This statement was borne out by the results of the statistical inquiry undertaken by Dr. Badice, who examined 720 women and found that 320 were bonnets and 307 blouses. Carrying the inquiry a step further Dr. Badice learned that 76.5 per cent of the bonnettes had husbands, while only 69 per cent of the blouses were married.

It is amusing to watch these register cranks. One got in the California building. "Say, boss," said he to the secretary, "are these names sent back to be printed in the papers?"

"Well, I guess some of the correspondents do send them back."

"Well, I'll register then. I've registered in fifty different books these two days. You see I've got friends all over the country, and I want them all to see that I'm at the world's fair."
